

METRO CONNECTION | OCT 28, 2011

The Location: The Winding History of Mt. Zion Cemetery

Rebecca Sheir

▶ LISTEN

Kim Bender, author of the blog, “The Location,” wants to nominate Mt. Zion Cemetery to the D.C. Preservation League’s Most Endangered Places list.

Rebecca Sheir

In the debut of our new series, “The Location,” blogger and history buff Kim Bender takes Rebecca Sheir to Georgetown’s Mt. Zion Cemetery, a burial ground that’s seen plenty of changes through the years – including multiple names... multiple owners... and multiple disinterments.

[Music: “Turn Your Face” by John Davis from Title Tracks / “Cemetery Gates” by Vitamin String Quartet from Tribute to Pantera]

Photos: Mt. Zion Cemetery

We depend on your support...

♥ DONATE

RELATED STORIES

METRO CONNECTION, AUG 24, 2012

From Stone To (Bright Red) Structure: A Tour of the Seneca Quarry

METRO CONNECTION, JUL 8, 2011

Digging Deep: Cracking the Mystery of the Dupont Circle Tunnels

THE KOJO NNAMDI SHOW, NOV 3, 2014

Gregg Herken: “The Georgetown Set”

METRO CONNECTION, AUG 16, 2013

The Location: The Pool Hall That Inspired Father Of D.C. Jazz
